The property has been known as the Cooper farm and was bought by Arthur T. McIntosh of Chicago. John B. Anderson and Wm. A. Murphy, of the Oliver Realty Co., will be associated with the syndicate in the development of the property, which will be laid out for subdivision purposes.

The deal was handled by Oliver Realty company of Joliet.

Tinley Man Falls
In Creek, Loses

$30; Finds Money

While walking thru the woods last Sunday, in Tinley Park, Edmund Moss slipped and fell into a creek. Upon getting out, he missed $30 which he had in bills in his pocket. Not knowing where it was lost, the farm was searched with no success. Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Moss decided to look down at the creek again, expecting if it was in the creek, it would by this time have washed down to Blue Island or farther.

Upon reaching the place of the accident, they saw something that looked familiar hanging on a barb wire which spanned the creek at this place. On further investigation the lost money was seen caught on the wire, and of course Mr. Moss lost time in wading in the water and reclaiming the coveted money.

The wire Sunday was below the water level and by Monday it had gone down about two inches, which exposed the wire with the bills hanging on it.

It seems that miracles still happen and had the money not been recovered, it would have proved an expensive bath for Mr. Moss.

Committee at Work on Will County

Road Program

Members of the special county board committee engaged in locating highways under the proposed bond issue will not complete its task before meeting of the supervisors Monday, it was announced today by Fred Francis, chairman of the committee.

Mr. Francis said his committee had been busy during the past month conferring with every supervisor in the county relative to the location of bond issue highways.

He said that estimates of the cost of construction must be prepared before a map of the road project could be submitted to the county board.

His committee will report the progress made but will not offer the bond issue map before the September session of the board.

Efforts are being made by the committee to satisfy every community in the county and at the same time build highways of service to the public.

State aid routes are being utilized for the county bond issue roads if possible in order that the county can obtain a refund of 50 per cent from the state.

Plans are being considered for an outer belt road around Joliet connecting all of the state bond issue routes.

Sections of roads which will probably be built with county bonds are as follows:

1. South Richards street from Hickory Creek to the Kankakee highway.

2. Connecting road between the state route 4 and the Lincoln highway from the "Five Corners" to Theodore street.

3. Connecting Washington street with the Lincoln highway, bringing road over the Michigan Central railroad traffic bridge.

4. Connecting state route 4 on the south with route 7, utilizing Patterson highway or some other road south of Joliet crossing Brandon's bridge.

5. Paved highway from Wheeler avenue in Rockdale to West Park avenue.

6. Paved highway on Maple road linked with the Cook county southwest highway.

The exact location of the roads will be determined within the next month and the amount of mileage and cost computed by the county highway office.

It is quite certain that the Richards street link, Washington St., link and the Maple street road will be carried out as originally outlined.

Other connecting points will be determined on the ability to obtain the rights of way free and the approval of the roads by the state highway department.

Members of the committee believe that where additional rights of way are required they will be donated by property owners who

Locked Out; Hold

Open Air Meeting

The Mokena Development Association scheduled for Tuesday night at the school house met with a snag when the school house doors were found locked. It is not known just what the reason was, whether the janitor forgot to unlock the doors or whether he had instructions not to unlock them. At any rate Association members would welcome some light on the subject.

Not daunted by being denied the use of a meeting place, the Association members held an open air meeting just the same. It was held out at this gathering that Cook County has had a bill introduced and which has been passed that the Wolf Road be designated as a state aid road from the Will-Cook county line north to the Cook-Lake county line, a distance of 41 miles.

The Wolf Road north of Mokena from the Maple Street road to the Will-Cook county line has been given a stone dressing by Frankfort township.

The Association will meet next Monday night.

Auto Ditched;

Three Hurt

A large touring car with three women and two men in it tipped over in a ditch at the Haney corner south of Mokena Tuesday when the driver turned the car too far over when he made a turn at the curve so that the wheels of the car got onto the grass, causing the car to skid into the ditch. The women were badly cut and bruised and were brought to the office of Dr. G. MacMahon at Mokena for medical attention. The men are said to have been salesmen for the McIntosh real estate company. The car was only slightly damaged.

August Hentsch

Cleans Up Mokena

City Hall and Yard

For many years the yard surrounding the village hall at Mokena has presented a very untidy appearance being allowed to grow in weeds and grass and the Village Hall itself was left dusty and untidy. This kind of a condition reflected on the city, and this year August Hentsch has made a big change in this condition. Mr. Hentsch has civic pride and likes to have things look neat and tidy so he has mowed the grass and dug up the weeds and will seed down some of the bare spots. He has had the windows of the hall washed and has also given the interior of the hall a good cleaning and has had clean curtains placed on the election booths. Mr. Hentsch has surely made a pleasant change and is to be highly complimented for his fine spirit of civic pride. Keep up the good work, Mr. Hentsch and may others do likewise and by so doing help Mokena to improve in many ways.

Cupid Invades

Mokena School

Cupid invaded the ranks of the Mokena school teachers this spring and as a result two of the teachers have been claimed by the little god of love. Miss Evans was united in marriage with Winn Oleson the past week and is now at home at Morton Grove, Ill. Miss Thayer who has been teaching the primary department is about to become the bride of a Methodist preacher.

R. I. LAYING STEEL RAILS

The Rock Island railroad is making many improvements this year, among them being the laying of new steel rails. At present new rails are being laid at Tinley Park and will be laid westward thru Mokena.

will greatly benefit by the road construction.

Altho no figures on the cost of the highway construction have been prepared, members of the committee believed that the cost may exceed $2,500,000 to be raised by the sale of county bonds.

The road construction can easily be financed, Mr. Francis said, if the gasoline tax now under consideration before the legislature is passed.

A bill favored by road boosters is one that would return 50 per cent of the tax to Will County. Based on a two cent tax it has been estimated that Will county would collect $216,000 so that $108,000 a year could be returned to this county for road building purposes.

Members of the committee were in Troy and Channahon townships today conferring with Supervisor Henry Lauterbach of Troy and Clinton R. Hulbert of Channahon.

Helps Others In

Distress; Is Injured

While Mr. Tewes was driving on the road south of Frankfort, Monday, he saw a car in the ditch and a woman was pinioned underneath it. A man who was with her had tried to lift the car to free her but was unable to do so. He hailed Mr. Tewes who stopped and helped lift the car and got the woman out from under it. The stranger instead of letting his end of the car down easy, let loose without any warning with the result that the top of the car struck Mr. Tewes on the head, almost scalping him. Dr. W. V. Hedges of Frankfort was summoned and sewed up the torn scalp. Mr. Tewes was doing a kind deed but in return was injured himself, thru the carelessness of the befriended stranger.

St. John's Mokena

Buys Parsonage

The congregation of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena has been debating for sometime on the matter of building or buying a new parsonage. At a special congregation meeting held Monday night it was decided to purchase the concrete block house built by V. H. Scheer of Tinley Park next to the George Koeller residence. This is a new building put up within the past two years. The consideration was $8,000. Harvey Frick who is building a new bungalow on the south side of the village, offered his property for $6,000, but this property was considered too far from the church, so the Scheer place which is close to the church was selected instead. The Scheer property is to be further improved with a new garage for the pastor's car.

Public Service

Laying Gas Mains

The Public Service has a large force of men engaged laying the gas mains to Mokena. The digging machine is close to town now and work of laying the gas mains in the village will be started within the next week or so. A force of men has been engaged welding the gas pipes in the village so they will be ready to lay in the trenches when the digging machine starts operations. Almost every household in the village is preparing to have gas installed. With the completion of the gas installation, Mokena will have all city conveniences. We have electricity, city water, gas, good transportation. All we need now is a few live industries to bring employment and the opening of a live sub-division and more new people and we will eventually have one of the best towns along the Rock Island railroad.

Work on extending the gas line to Frankfort will be next in order. Gas pipes have been strung to the village of Frankfort ready for

DeSelm Victor In

Judicial Election

The judicial election held Monday showed that the voters of the judicial district resented the interference of any outside influence in directing the election. Both DeSelm and Stone who got in "dutch" with Len Small were re-elected with big majorities, Stone winning with 7,000 majority and DeSelm with 5,000 majority. At Mokena 56 votes were cast. At Frankfort nearly three times as many votes were cast. Judge DeSelm received 26 votes at Mokena and Mayhew 29 votes, and at Frankfort DeSelm received 142 votes as against 56 for Mayhew.

Recount Case Up

For Final Debate

The final arguments in the Weston-Markgraf election contest for the Office of Sheriff, was started in the County Court before Judge Ralph C. Austin, Tuesday.

The attorney's for each side, which are Edward R. Nadelhoffer and David D. Anderson, representing Alvah M. Weston, et al, and Robert W. Martin and Wm. C. Mooney, representing Albert E. Markgraf came to an agreement before Court closed last week, that each side would be limited to ten hours on a side to present their case.

Mr. Nadelhoffer started the argument for Mr. Weston Tuesday morning and was still talking when court adjourned that evening. Mr. Nadelhoffer spent much time going over ballots that had been objected to on the re-count in an endeavor to enlighten the Judge as to why these objections had been made. He had finished this at a late hour Tuesday afternoon and at the time Court adjourned was outlining the case up to the present time.

Mr. Nadelhoffer has consumed about four and one-half hours of the Weston time and will continue for a short time in the morning. He will, no doubt, be followed by Mr. Martin who will argue his whole ten hours before the Weston attorney's consume the balance of their time.

The case will be finished and in the hands of Judge Austin the first part of next week and the Judge will take it under advisement for ten days or two weeks.

Orland Cows Set

Production Record

Production record of 1,253 lbs. of milk and 54.8 pounds of butterfat, each was the achievement of a Will county herd of fourteen pure-bred Brown Swiss cows owned by H. W. Bischoff & Sons, of Orland, in the state honor list for April.

Will county placed two of the 10 best herds and a pair of the 10 best cows in the April honor list.

Four of the ten best cows and one of the ten best herds gave Stephenson county the highest place on the list, with Will county a close second. The April list is composed of the highest producers among the 14,000 Illinois dairy cows that are being tested for milk and butterfat production in the 31 dairy herd improvement association of the state. C. S. Rhodes, dairy extension specialist of the University of Illinois is in charge of the association.

Both of the Will county cows listed among the ten best producers of the state are owned by H. W. Bischoff & Sons dairy. One of the animals produced 85.6 pounds butterfat, and the other produced 83.6 lb of butterfat. W. T. Rawleigh, of Freeport, is the owner of the two highest producers for the month. One of Mr. Rawleigh's cows produced 101.8 pounds butterfat, and the other 99 pounds.

W. W. Boughton & Sons, of Plainfield, own the second best producing herd in the state for the month according to the butterfat records. The Boughton herd averaged 48.7 pounds butterfat, which was 6.1 pounds behind the record mark set by Bischoff herd.

Mokena Principal

A Life Saver

Prof. Clarence Uhl of the Mokena public school proved himself a life saver last week when he saved the life of Iris Hamilton. She was seriously injured on a slide, part of the school ground play equipment, when a long sliver of wood entered her leg severing two arteries. Prof. Uhl was called and saw the child was fast bleeding to death. He at once saw the great danger she was in. He stopped the flow of blood by pressing his thumbs against the severed artery. He succeeded in stopping further loss of blood until medical help arrived 45 minutes later. The quick action and thought of Prof. Uhl was the only factor that prevented the child from bleeding to death and his many friends here say he is worthy of a Carnegie medal for saving a life. Iris has returned home from the hospital and is doing nicely.

Peoria county trailed Stephenson and Will counties in the list by placing two of the ten best herds and one of the ten best cows on the records. Kane, Ogle, Cook, Moultrie and Whiteside counties each possessed one of the best herds, while Champaign, McHenry and Boone counties each owned one of the ten best herds.

TINLEY NOTES

The "Ha-Ha" club met last week with Mrs. Emil Ebert of Midlothian. Mrs. A. W. Fulton won 1st prize and Mrs. Sam Powers won 2nd at Bunco. Luncheon was served. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. A. W. Fulton.

Master Glenn Moss is spending the week at Cedar Lake, Ind., with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Moss.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Koehler and son spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Moss and family.

The Commencement Exercises of the Tinley Park public school held Thursday evening, June 2nd, were most impressive, when 15 students received their diplomas from Mr. Tobin.

Mr. Tobin gave an interesting talk reminiscent of the days when he too, was a young teacher and boarder in the town of Tinley Park, and though many years have passed since then, the memory of those happy days endeared this school in the heart of Mr. Tobin.

The graduates are: Bernice Vogt, Mildred Nielsen, Ruth Funk, Stella Gotham, Alma Siemsen, Bernice Rick, Grace Lucht, Bernice Uzemack, Benjamin Argyle, Earl DeVal, Albert Brandau, Earl Siemsen, Irving Funk, Norbert Simon and Edward Koehler. The class made a pleasing picture as the girls were gowned in white and the boys in white trousers and dark coats.

A playette was given in the forefront of the program, which was in charge of Mrs. Mary Fulton.

Miss Agnes Bruggeman entertained eleven of her girl friends at dinner Sunday, the occasion being her birthday. They remained for the evening when a most enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Edw. Cuddihy and Miss Alice are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Harper for the week end.

Mrs. Thos. McArdle has sold his building in Englewood.

Mrs. Wallace Combs Sr., and Jr., attended the luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Dan Hendricks of Tampico, Mexico, by Mrs. Mable Shasteen, at the new Stevens Hotel, last week.

The Triangle Club has a real baseball team in the field this year. Last Sunday they played two big games, one with Blue Island and one with Midlothian and defeated both teams.

The R. I. has a big force of men engaged laying new steel rails here.

"Yo-hay," muttered the warriors in guttural assent. "We will keep our hearts strong, O Ta-wan-ne-ars."

Their faces were more serious than before, but they exhibited no signs of fear.

We moved much more cautiously now that we were near our journey's end, with three scouts always in front, one on either flank of the path we trod. But we saw no signs of other men, although many times we came upon bear tracks. Toward evening we struck the waters of the tumbling little river through which Ta-wan-ne-ars and I had waded that night after Marjory had released us.

Scouts returned to report not a footprint in the snow. We ate a little parched corn mixed with maple sugar and some jerked meat we carried in our haversacks.

About midnight we all moved forward, Ta-wan-ne-ars leading the line. The oaks and elms, maples and willows, which had composed the elements of the forest, now gave place to tall funeral firs, whose massive jade-green foliage remained untouched by the icy breath of winter. Grotesque shadows darted vaguely over the white ground as the trees swayed and groaned. In the distance an owl hooted solemnly. The Otter touched my shoulder.

"Did you hear the owl?" he murmured.

"Yes," I whispered back.

"It is cold for an owl to leave his tree hole."

He threw back his head, and I started at the fidelity of the repetition.

"Too-whoo-oo! Too-hoo!"

We listened, but there was no answer. Instead, after brief interval, the howl of a wolf resounded.

A few yards farther on the owl hooted again. The line halted, and the warrior in front of him whispered that Ta-wan-ne-ars wished to speak with me. I passed by him and several others and came to where the chief stood, peering, or, trying to peer, into the night.

"There was something strange about the owl, brother," he said. "The warriors told me that the Otter answered it, yet it did not reply. And then the wolf."

A yell as of fiends from hell shattered the mantle of silence. Flames spurted through the firs, and in the gleam of the discharges and of torches thrown into our midst I had a fleeting glimpse of hideous masked figures bounding between the tree trunks.

"Keep your hearts strong, brothers of the Long House," shouted Ta-wan-ne-ars. "They are only Cahnua dogs. Stand to it."

He fired as he spoke. I imitated him. Our men shot off a scattering volley. Then the False Faces were amongst us, coming from all sides, springing out of the ground, dropping from the very branches overhead and wielding their ga-jaw, or war clubs, with dreadful effect.

CHAPTER XV

Ga-ha-no's Sacrifice

There was no time to reload. We fought with ax and knife as best we could. Ta-wan-ne-ars and I, with half a dozen of our warriors, crowded back to back. The rest of our party were cut off in twos and threes.

Resistance was hopeless. The swarms of False Faces seemed to care nothing for death if only they could bring down an Iroquois.

I was knocked senseless by a blow which I partially warded with my tomahawk. When I came to I was lying in the snow in front of a huge fire. My arms were bound and my head ached so violently that I felt sick.

"Is my brother in pain?" asked the voice of Ta-wan-ne-ars.

I rolled over to find him lying beside me, the blood from three or four trivial cuts freezing on his head and shoulders.

"Yes," I groaned, "but 'tis naught." "There was treachery," he said. "They knew we were coming, and they lost many men so that they might take us alive."

"All our warriors—" I faltered. He turned his head to the left; and, following his gaze, I saw that I was on the right of a line of recumbent figures, which my dizziness would not permit me to count.

"No not all, I think," Ta-wan-ne-ars answered after a moment. "Five are slain and fourteen others lie here. But I do not see the Otter."

"The Otter suspected something wrong," I said. "Twas he who answered the owl's call."

"It may be he escaped," replied Ta-wan-ne-ars. "I must warn our brothers to say naught of him. If the Keepers do not suspect, they may believe they have all of us safe in their net."

He whispered his warning to the man beside him, and it was passed down the line.

"Your head is much swollen, brother," he said, rolling over again so as to face me. "Let Ta-wan-ne-ars make shift to bathe it with snow."

A shadow fell athwart us as we lay and a mocking voice replied for me:

"By all means, most excellent Iroquois. I trust you will nurse our valuable captive back to full strength and health."

I struggled to a sitting position, for I liked not to lie at De Veulle's feet, however much I might be at his mercy.

"So you walked into the spider's web," he continued, standing betwixt me and the firelight which ruddied his sinful face. "A woman's plea—and you threw caution to the winds! You fool!"

"The letter was a bait?" I exclaimed incredulously.

"For you—yes. I say again—you fool! Baptiste took the letter to Murray, and Murray read it to me. It could not have been contrived more skillfully to suit our plans."

"Twas ridiculous, no doubt, but I was easier in my heart for assurance that Marjory had not known her appeal."

was used as a lure. It enabled me to maintain a stoicism of demeanor I did not feel.

"Well, 'twas kind of you to make such haste," he went on, sneering down at me. "You will be in time for the wedding after all. Oh, never fear; you shall be permitted to live that long. We have plenty of meat in this bag to supply diversion for our savages in the meantime."

He switched suddenly into the Seneca vernacular.

"Are you all here, Iroquois dogs?" he demanded curtly.

"All are here, French mongrel," returned Ta-wan-ne-ars pleasantly.

De Veulle kicked him.

"Keep that for the torture stake," he advised. "We have five corpses and fourteen warriors and yourself. That is all?"

"All," reiterated Ta-wan-ne-ars.

De Veulle passed along the line, cross-questioning each prisoner to an accompaniment of kicks and threats. All told the same story. De Veulle seemed satisfied. He returned to my side, and summoned a host of masked figures from the surrounding shadows. They jerked us to our feet, stamped out the fire and escorted us over the trampled, bloody snow where we had fought, through the gloomy aisles of the Evil Wood and into the irregular streets of La Vierge du Bois.

Two men stood by the gate of the stockade to greet us. One was Murray, the other was Baptiste Meurier.

The unsavory face of the courier de bois grinned appreciation of my astonishment.

"Peste, monsieur!" he exclaimed. "It seems you are a slow traveler. I feared I might be behind you, but I arrived twenty-four hours in advance. I have to thank you for the beaver pelts. They were a sufficient bribe for my immediate release."

"That will do, Baptiste," interjected Murray. "Heard you ever, Ta-wan-ne-ars, of scouts who wore bears' pads for moccasins?"

For the first and only time during our acquaintance Ta-wan-ne-ars was surprised into a look of chagrin.

"We thought it was late for bears to be out," he admitted.

Murray chuckled with amusement. "Quite so, quite so! And so you visit us once more, Master Ormerod. I confess 'tis an unexpected pleasure which we shall strive to make the most of."

"Sir," I said earnestly, "It makes little difference to me what is my fate, but I conjure you by whatever pretensions to gentility you possess to give over your plan of selling your daughter."

"The words you choose for your appeal do not commend it to me," he returned. "Nor do I perceive what business of yours it may be to question my daughter's marriage."

Now, what put it in my head I know not, unless it was the fact that in her letter to me Marjory had spoken of him as "Mr. Murray"; but I leaped to the instant conclusion that she was not his daughter. Sure, no man could have disposed of his own daughter so cold-bloodedly!

"She is not your daughter in the first place," I retorted boldly. "And in the second place, she has expressed to me her abhorrence of her marriage, as you know."

"Zooks," he remarked mildly after an interval of silence, "his strong language that you use. You are a headstrong young man, Master Ormerod. Can it be that you have some personal interest in the matter?"

Again some instinct prompted me. "I have," I asserted. "Your daughter prefers me to the man you would force upon her. And as a suitor, according to your estimates of the world's opinion, I am far more eligible than this Frenchman."

"You are scarcely wise to say so to his face, and I beg leave to differ with you. I find the Chevalier de Veulle a very eligible young man, of rank in the world, of achievement, of distinct promise for the future."

"If you can call a man eligible who was not even eligible for continued residence at the most profligate court in Europe, I agree with you."

"Tut, tut," remonstrated Murray. "Your words are not those of a gentleman, sir. We will abandon the subject. Where do you propose to incarcerate the prisoners, chevalier?"

"I would not risk them a second time in the keeping of the savages," said De Veulle. "Let us try your strong room. There you and I can have an eye to their security."

"That is well conceded. Is there any news of Pere Hyacinthe?"

"I have stationed a man at the river crossing to bring word the instant he arrives."

"I applaud your thoughtfulness. This continued delay in the ceremony is annoying. Master Ormerod, your sufferings are upon your own head."

I looked eagerly for Marjory's face as we marched across the yard inside the stockade and through the heavy timber doors of the house. But she was not visible. Our guards examined our bonds carefully, fastened our legs and then left us.

We remained there three days, without intercourse with anyone except our Indian jailers, who brought us messes of food twice daily.

On the fourth day we were eating our meager fare of boiled corn when the door was flung open violently and the gaunt figure of Black Robe entered unannounced. Behind him, obviously unwillingly, walked Murray.

"Which is the Englishman Ormerod?" demanded the priest in French. "Here I am, father," I answered, standing up as well as I could.

"Mistress Murray tells me that you have won her affections?" he asked coldly.

My heart leaped with sudden joy. "That is true, father," I said. "And you love her?"

"As much as a man may, father."

He turned upon Murray with a gesture of decision.

Acadians Returned to Get Hidden Treasure

When the Acadians were driven from their homes in what is now Nova Scotia in 1755, by the British and Colonial troops from New England, their expulsion came so suddenly that they made haste to bury their valuables, hoping that at some time they might return for them. Some of them did return but others, it would appear, were not so fortunate, for at various times, pots and chests containing money and other valuables have been uncovered. There is a story well known in the region about a family living on the north shore of Cumberland basin in 1834. One evening members of the family saw a boat anchored about a mile from land and speculated as to its mission. Next morning it had gone and a little later it was discovered that a block of stone that served as a doorstep in front of the house had been moved beneath where

"Sir," I said earnestly, "It makes little difference to me what is my fate, but I conjure you by whatever pretensions to gentility you possess to give over your plan of selling your daughter."

"The words you choose for your appeal do not commend it to me," he returned. "Nor do I perceive what business of yours it may be to question my daughter's marriage."

Now, what put it in my head I know not, unless it was the fact that in her letter to me Marjory had spoken of him as "Mr. Murray"; but I leaped to the instant conclusion that she was not his daughter. Sure, no man could have disposed of his own daughter so cold-bloodedly!

"She is not your daughter in the first place," I retorted boldly. "And in the second place, she has expressed to me her abhorrence of her marriage, as you know."

"Zooks," he remarked mildly after an interval of silence, "his strong language that you use. You are a headstrong young man, Master Ormerod. Can it be that you have some personal interest in the matter?"

Again some instinct prompted me. "I have," I asserted. "Your daughter prefers me to the man you would force upon her. And as a suitor, according to your estimates of the world's opinion, I am far more eligible than this Frenchman."

"You are scarcely wise to say so to his face, and I beg leave to differ with you. I find the Chevalier de Veulle a very eligible young man, of rank in the world, of achievement, of distinct promise for the future."

"If you can call a man eligible who was not even eligible for continued residence at the most profligate court in Europe, I agree with you."

"Tut, tut," remonstrated Murray. "Your words are not those of a gentleman, sir. We will abandon the subject. Where do you propose to incarcerate the prisoners, chevalier?"

"I would not risk them a second time in the keeping of the savages," said De Veulle. "Let us try your strong room. There you and I can have an eye to their security."

"That is well conceded. Is there any news of Pere Hyacinthe?"

"I have stationed a man at the river crossing to bring word the instant he arrives."

"I applaud your thoughtfulness. This continued delay in the ceremony is annoying. Master Ormerod, your sufferings are upon your own head."

I looked eagerly for Marjory's face as we marched across the yard inside the stockade and through the heavy timber doors of the house. But she was not visible. Our guards examined our bonds carefully, fastened our legs and then left us.

We remained there three days, without intercourse with anyone except our Indian jailers, who brought us messes of food twice daily.

On the fourth day we were eating our meager fare of boiled corn when the door was flung open violently and the gaunt figure of Black Robe entered unannounced. Behind him, obviously unwillingly, walked Murray.

"Which is the Englishman Ormerod?" demanded the priest in French. "Here I am, father," I answered, standing up as well as I could.

"Mistress Murray tells me that you have won her affections?" he asked coldly.

My heart leaped with sudden joy. "That is true, father," I said. "And you love her?"

"As much as a man may, father."

He turned upon Murray with a gesture of decision.

Acadians Returned to Get Hidden Treasure

When the Acadians were driven from their homes in what is now Nova Scotia in 1755, by the British and Colonial troops from New England, their expulsion came so suddenly that they made haste to bury their valuables, hoping that at some time they might return for them. Some of them did return but others, it would appear, were not so fortunate, for at various times, pots and chests containing money and other valuables have been uncovered. There is a story well known in the region about a family living on the north shore of Cumberland basin in 1834. One evening members of the family saw a boat anchored about a mile from land and speculated as to its mission. Next morning it had gone and a little later it was discovered that a block of stone that served as a doorstep in front of the house had been moved beneath where it had lain was the imprint of a three-legged pot, doubtless having contained valuables left by the Acadians nearly a century before.—Montreal Family Herald.

Nature's Perfection

With all our knowledge we cannot keep clean a piece of glass, if ever so precious, such as the lens of a microscope, without scratching it in the cleaning. The window and lens of the human body, the eye, is kept automatically clean for the time of one's life by means of a wonderful slightly disinfectant fluid, the tears, and the winking of our eyelids, and the water sent down the nose.

Lesson for June 12

PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all.—Ps. 34:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of Peter.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Answers Prayer for Peter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Does God Deliver Us?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of United Prayer.

1. Peter's Imprisonment (vv. 1-4).

1. By whom (v. 1).

Herod, the grandson of the wicked Herod who slew the innocent children of Bethlehem.

2. The reason (v. 3).

It was to gain the favor of the Jews. Herod was not a Jew, but an Edomite, therefore knew that his success was dependent upon his having the good will of the Jews. Herod for the sake of popularity manifested a deep sympathy for degenerate Judaism. It was but the sympathy of the politician. Since the church had developed so as to be a successful rival of Judaism, indeed was already displacing it, he saw an opportunity to curry favor with the Jews by putting forth his hands against it.

3. The method (v. 4).

He was arrested, put into prison and guarded by four quaternions of soldiers. A quaternion is a guard of four soldiers. Humanly speaking, it was impossible to escape. They had doubtless heard of Peter's escape from jail before, so they thought they would take no risks this time. However, they made one fatal mistake—they left out God.

II. The Church of God in Prayer (v. 5).

The church was at a crisis. Her situation was most grave. James, one of the brethren of the church, was dead, and Peter, the most prominent of all, was in prison. In this desperate strait they did the wise thing—they betook themselves to prayer. It was a noteworthy prayer.

1. It was unto God, not unto men, or to be heard of men. This is a very common fault today. All true prayer is unto God.

2. It was united prayer.

There is peculiar power in the united prayer of God's people.

3. It was an intensely earnest prayer.

It was more than unceasing prayer. It was the earnest desire of the soul as it stretched itself out toward God.

4. It was definite prayer.

They specifically offered prayer to God for Peter. Their prayer was concentrated, definite and specific.

III. Peter Delivered by an Angel (vv. 6-11).

1. Peter sleeping (v. 6).

This shows that he was not greatly disturbed over the matter. The Lord keeps in perfect peace those whose minds are stayed on Him. (Isa. 26:3).

2. Peter leaves the prison (vv. 7-10).

A heavenly light shone in the prison. The angel smote Peter on the side; the chains fell off. Peter put on his clothes and passed by one guard after another through the iron gate out into the city.

3. The effect upon Peter (v. 11).

Although the matter was so wonderful to Peter, even outside his consciousness, when he came to himself he was assured beyond peradventure that God had miraculously delivered him from Herod's wicked hands.

IV. Unconscious Unbelief (vv. 12-19).

1. Behavior of Peter and the church (vv. 12-17).

Peter went to the house of Mary and knocked. The knock was answered by Rhoda who was so overjoyed that she forgot to open the gate, and ran in and told them that Peter was at the gate. The disciples were not prepared for such good news and even accused her of madness. She, undaunted, insisted. They offered as an explanation that perhaps it might be Peter's guardian angel in his likeness. They got more than they expected. Peter rehearsed unto them the Lord's dealing with him, and instructed them to make these things known unto James and the brethren.

2. The behavior of the soldiers (vv. 18, 19).

There was great agitation among them as to what had become of Peter. This was a serious matter since they were responsible for him. Not being able to account for Peter's escape, Herod commanded that they be put to death. After this Herod went down to Caesarea. Here he was adored as God. Because he arrogated this honor to himself, the Lord smote him. Herod died, but the Word of the Lord grew and multiplied.

Life and Death

It is good when the garden of life and the sepulcher of death are linked with Him who was crucified. He makes the garden tenfold richer and more beautiful. He robs the sepulcher of its terror and gloom.—Rev. Alex. Smellie, D. D.

Pain a Small Matter

With Beauty as Goal

Woman has always displayed an amazing fortitude when it has pleased her to endure discomfort or even pain for the sake of her looks, remarks the Pathfinder Magazine. She will pinch her feet into narrow slipper toes, perch herself on six-inch heels, and smilingly declare that her shoes are perfectly comfortable. She will eschew warm winter underwear and shiver in short skirts and sheer stockings without batting an eye, although a sturdy male similarly clad would fear freezing to death.

'Twas ever thus. The women of today are no more Spartan than the women of past centuries. The ladies of ancient Greece, who wore loosely flowing robes and sandals without hose, used to pass their arms and legs swiftly through a flame to singe off the offending hair which marred the ivory smoothness of their skin.

Electricity Runs Plows

Plowing by electric power is being tried out in Italy. The plow is anchored on opposite sides of the field. The cost of equipment and operation is high, and the method is successful only in large and level fields that are free from stumps and other obstacles. Inventors are working on devices in which storage batteries may be used.

Always Rising

"So that distinguished looking man in the tall hat is your leading citizen, eh? Has he received many degrees from the different colleges?"

"Has he? Why, he has received so many degrees we call him the 'human thermometer.'"

MOKENA

The commencement exercises of Mokena High and Grade school were held in St. John Evangelical church parlors last Thursday evening.

A program somewhat different from the usual, was rendered and highly enjoyed. A play, given by the graduates, depicting a meeting of a Mokena Village Board in 1943, was uniquely carried out. The laying of a corner stone, and a reception later, where the governor of Illinois was present, were the high spots in the play. The Class prophecy, Will, songs etc., were part of the above reception program.

Prof. Clarence Uhl, in his cap and gown of his graduating from Northwestern College, with the red cap tassel and hood, designating his high degree, presented the diplomas in a very dignified and beautiful manner, and also gave a brief address to the classes.

ST. MICHAEL CATH. CHURCH

In Sunday's First Communion Class were nine small boys and girls from Palos and Orland. The church was filled with friends and relatives of the little communicants.

The 100 baby chicks donated by Mr. Poorman of Tinley Park were awarded to Mrs. Wm. Raney of Orland.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jungles of Lemont, was chosen at the Palos Festival, as the healthiest girl in Miss Nellie G. McMahon's Division. Dr. H. Bundesen, Chicago's Health Commissioner, will on June 11th, select the County Prize winner.

The officers of the Altar and Rosary Society served dinner in the church dining room, to the Orland Lion's Club. Twenty members attended.

The Independence Day committee on games and races is composed of: Miss Viola Bremner, Mr. J. Ludwig, and Mr. W. Hillig. They are rounding up the heavyweights of the township for the annual Palos vs. Orland tug-of-war.

There seems to be a generous supply of volunteers from Palos, a big shortage in Orland. The alleged reason for this, the Orlandites affirm is their lack of practise in "sitting it out" contests. WAYS TO BLOCK CROOKED PROMOTERS

By W. R. MOREHOUSE

Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

(This is one of a series of articles exposing the wiles of sharpers who are after your money.)

MANY reliable corporations, firms and individuals are engaged in developing mining properties, drilling for possible new oil wells and promoting new inventions and enterprises. On the other hand many unreliable persons are ostensibly engaged in the same pursuits, but in reality are only promoting frauds. Therefore, every investor should first divide the sheep from the goats before he hazards his savings. Because there are many dishonest manipulators using mining, oil, invention and promotion terms to deceive does not mean that all promoters in these fields are crooked. The truth is, there are many trustworthy men engaged in promoting enterprises that are honest investments. The problem is to know the difference between promoters of the reliable type and the high-pressure variety. The former are engaged in legitimate business. The other group is engaged in fleecing the public.

The number of those who deliberately scheme to defraud is large and they are shrewd and deceitful. For this reason those who cannot afford to lose their savings should not trust entirely to their own judgment in making investments.

In order to divide the sheep from the goats—to distinguish between reliable and unreliable promoters, to tell the good investments from the worthless—the inexperienced investor should consult his banker or let the National Better Business Bureau, whose headquarters are in New York City, advise him. It costs nothing to get such advice from either source. It is safe to say that if those who have lost their savings through fraudulent schemes had followed this simple course they would still be in possession of their money.

Get the Facts
Invariably, get the facts and take no substitute. There is nothing better and nothing just as good as the facts when it comes to withdrawing your savings from the bank and investing them. The facts about an investment either strengthen its position or show it up to be risky—oftentimes too risky for the person who cannot afford to lose.

Good Advice that Prevented Disaster
New schemes to defraud are being hatched daily. The unscrupulous promoter never sleeps but is continuously plotting new methods of attack on the savers' hard-won accumulations. The liberties he takes with the law and the schemes he designs for belittling the sound advice of responsible persons makes it even more essential for investors to get the facts.

Remember that anything that is worth investing in is worth knowing about as to its safety, its income, and its marketability. Any investment which is enshrouded by a screen of glowing promises or is so complicated that neither you nor your banker can fathom it and get the hard facts isn't an investment you can afford to put your money into.

Make it an unbreakable rule to get all the facts, whether the investment be large or small, and you will save yourself the heartaches and bitter disappointment of losing your savings. Millions of dollars which have unfortunately been lost through poor investment might have been saved if the investors had taken time to investigate before investing. There is always need for capital in safe, honest business and so great is the legitimate demand for investors' funds that not one cent need be wasted by them on fraudulent schemes.

Don't Trade Good for Bad
Don't exchange your investments for (A future article will tell of more schemes by which people are defrauded of their savings.)

They were on hand at the appointed hour. With the cunning of expert swindlers they proceeded to inveigle her stock away from her, assuring her that if she exchanged her public utility stock for that of the fruit company there was no doubt she would become very rich. But just as they were spreading out before her a beautifully embossed stock certificate the bureau's detective stepped out from his place of concealment and told the swindlers he had come prepared to take them for a ride in his car. They protested loudly and even struck at him, but experienced as he was in handling persons who resist arrest he soon had them handcuffed together.

Investigation revealed that the certificate of stock of the fruit company was fictitious. No such company had ever been organized. The evidence also disclosed that some certificates had already been issued and exchanged and there were a large number more ready for future use whenever a trade could be arranged.

Literally thousands of inexperienced investors are being swindled out of their good investments in such trades. It behooves all persons who have good investments not to exchange them without first getting all the facts from their banker or other person fully qualified to advise and protect them.

(A future article will tell of more schemes by which people are defrauded of their savings.)

BANKERS HELPING

Three banks in South Carolina have inaugurated a plan to provide free of rent for two years a centrally located place to be used by the farmers of Greenville and neighboring counties for the purpose of establishing a creamery, a canning factory and a farm woman's club. The idea is to get the farmers to raise livestock, to raise their own food and feed and to have something extra to sell. The canning factory is intended to utilize the surplus garden and fruit products, and the club rooms for getting the support and co-operation of the farm women.

Georgia bankers have made great strides in furthering a diversified farming program the past year. They induced farmers to sow fifty-five car loads of vetch seed, furnished local prizes in eighty counties for the corn contest, the state prize of $1,000 being furnished by a bank in Atlanta. A banker-farmer alfalfa demonstration was held at the college and attended by 250 bankers and farmers. Alfalfa acreage has increased from 1,800 to 5,000, the demonstration being credited with 50 per cent of this increase. This year the state has produced 12,000,000 more bushels of corn than last year, has sold 50 cars of truck, $2,000,000 worth of pecans, and has produced 150,000,000 pounds of meat and enough corn and hay for its own use.

AS LABOR SEES BANKS

Vast sums of money are lost each year by wage-earners through investments hastily entered into. With the confidence of the wage-earners, banks will be enabled to more accurately advise such investors and thus save money which might otherwise be lost by unwise speculation. — William Green, President American Federation of Labor.

National Radio Audition
Open to Young Singers
in This Country.

America's future generation of vocal stars will be disclosed to the world this Fall as another of the wonders due to radio. Every young man or woman with the gift of song, whether from country, town or city, will have an equal chance.

A nation-wide quest for the best young singers and the opening of the door of opportunity to them has been undertaken by the Atwater Kent Foundation, an institution established for scientific and educational purposes by A. Atwater Kent, the Philadelphia radio manufacturer and sponsor of the Sunday night grand opera hour, broadcast over a network of nineteen stations.

The Foundation has announced plans for a "National Radio Audition," to find by competition the best undiscovered voices in the United States. Prizes aggregating $17,500, with tuition for a musical education in certain cases, are offered as follows:

The two winners of first place in the National Audition—a man and a woman—will each receive a gold decoration, $5,000 in cash and two years' tuition in a leading conservatory.

Winners of second prizes will each receive $2,000 in cash and one year's tuition.

Winners of third prizes will each receive $1,000 and one year's tuition.

Winners of fourth prizes will each receive $500.

Winners of fifth prizes will each receive $250.

Musical, civic and women's clubs in each community in each state will be invited to hold local contests to select the best young man and best young woman singers of their towns. These winners will then be certified to a state audition, which will be broadcast by a radio station in each state. A state winner of each sex will be chosen and will receive a silver medal.

The next step is a district audition. The young men and women who have won state honors will be taken to a central broadcasting station in one of five districts, where an audition will be broadcast to select the two winners—a young man and a young woman—from that district.

The two winners in each district will receive gold medals and the ten finalists thus selected will be taken to New York for the final National Audition, to be broadcast over a national network of stations. All expenses of contestants in the district and final auditions, including railroad fare, hotel bills, entertainment, etc., will be paid by the Atwater Kent Foundation.

The spirit and purpose of the National Audition are indicated in a statement by A. Atwater Kent, president of the Foundation, who said:

"The discovery of one of those rare voices, of which each generation produces a very few, seems to me an event of profound national importance. Even when such a voice could give pleasure to only a few thousand people in a year it was a national treasure. Now that millions may enjoy it on the same evening through the medium of radio, such a voice has become priceless.

"The National Radio Audition, supported by the Atwater Kent Foundation, is an undertaking to search the entire country for beautiful voices and to offer these singers an opportunity for full development, recognition and reward."

The principal qualifications for contestants are as follows:

Must not be over 25 years old; must never have been associated with a professional theatrical or operatic company; must never have been a paid principal in any concert held outside their own states; must declare an intention to follow a musical career and must be free from theatrical or musical contracts.

This limitation permits choir singers to enter the auditions, even though they may have received financial compensation for singing in churches. Other groups from which entries are anticipated are students in musical schools and locally prominent singers in high schools and colleges. Musical organizations in each state are also afforded an opportunity to participate.

Our eighth grade class consisting of six members viz., Henry Schenkel, Wilbert Harnew, Clarence Wodrich, Helen Treizenberg, Florence Griede and Nellie Van Dyk, took the County Final Examination at Worth on March 25th. We need not wonder why they all came home smiling for they all made excellent grades ranging from 90 to 97. They said that the exam was easy but all agreed that any exam is easy when pupils are prepared for it.

Our school was well represented at the Grand Palos Park Festival on June 3rd. While we did not win a banner in the parade, we are not ashamed of the showing which we made and have received many compliments concerning it. As soon as the parade was over, we all made a high dive for the athletic field where we "did our stuff." Our star runners and jumpers were soon in action and plainly showed the good effects of the training and practice which they had been receiving for the past few weeks. The final result was that our school, Dist. 122, carried home the blue banner which was given as first prize to the school scoring the highest number of points in the athletic contest of Divisions 6 and 7. Of course we are proud of it!

Our Eighth Grade Commencement Exercise was held on Monday evening, June 6th and was well attended. The room was beautifully decorated in the class colors, orange and blue. The class motto, "Just Budding" was beautifully portrayed by a large flower basket hanging back of the class and containing 6 large stems with opening buds, emblematical of the 6 graduates who were just opening their lives for a larger work in a larger world than that to which they have been accustomed in the past. The program was as follows: Mother Goose Party by grades 1, 2, and 3; March by classes 1927-28; Class history by Helen Treizenberg; Piano Solo by Minnie Harnew; Class Prophecy by Wilbert Harnew; Address and Presentation by Miss Catherine McClaughry; Piano Solo by Clarence Wodrich; Class Poem by Florence Griede; Remarks by Mr. Simmons; Class Song by Classes 1297-28, and Dismissal. Everyone seemed to enjoy the program and departed with a feeling that it was good to be there.

Mr. and Mrs. Simmons who have been re-employed as principal and teacher of our school for the coming year, will spend part of their summer vacation visiting with relatives and friends in the vicinities of Vienna and Murphysboro in Southern Illinois.

Our School is proud of its 3 Achievement Graduates viz., Henry Schenkel, Wilbert Harnew and Helen Treizenberg, who have their achievement pins filled with stars and are invited to attend the big banquet given for the achievement graduates near the last of June. The banquet is to be held in one of the large hotels of Chicago.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction, as well as dollars and cents.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a household of boarders, besides caring for her own family.

The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself. One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 357, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says, 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Geologist's Idea Made

Fortunes for Others

The first to introduce the use of coal oil, or "kerosene," in the United States and Canada was Dr. Abraham Gesner, a distinguished Canadian geologist.

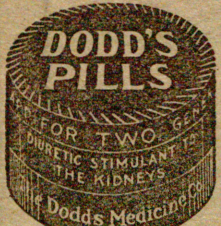

Doctor Gesner, after long experimentation, discovered how to produce oil that could be used in lamps for illuminating purposes, from bituminous shale and candle coal. Though he gave the name "kerosene" to his discovery it was popularly called coal oil.

Following the discovery of petroleum in Pennsylvania in 1859, and later in many other sections of North America, kerosene became the principal product of the distillation of the crude oil. Like most inventors, Doctor Gesner reaped little financial benefit from his discovery, which was destined to be the foundation of scores of immense fortunes.

Now, About Children

Virginia Dibble, expert on fashions for children, says in the Woman's Home Companion: "The custom of dressing two children alike is followed in many of the best-dressed families." A mere man takes Miss Dibble to task for suggesting, "but the best-dressed families never had more than one child."

DAINTY FOODS

Oranges in any form are always welcome in our food. The following recipe makes a tasty dessert:

Orange Souffle.—To the whites of three eggs add a small pinch of salt and beat until stiff, then add gradually three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar.

Beat the yolks of the eggs until light, add six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and stir in enough orange juice to thin to the consistency of coffee cream. Into this fold carefully one-half of the beaten whites, turn into a baking dish and cook in a dish of water until it puffs. Spread over the top the pulp of three oranges, cover with the remainder of the whites and set into the oven to brown lightly. The reason for adding the oranges after the first cooking is that they become bitter if cooked for a longer time.

Roquefort Salad Dressing.—Cream two ounces of Roquefort cheese, using a wooden spoon. Gradually beat in four to six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two to three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a scant half teaspoonful of salt and paprika. This is especially good on head lettuce.

Wild fowl is most appetizing with: Ripe Olive Sauce.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add one sliced onion and cook until slightly brown. Remove the onion and stir to a smooth paste with the butter and five tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and cook with two cupfuls of brown stock, adding gradually until well cooked. Cut the meat from a dozen ripe olives, cover with water and cook seven minutes, then add to the sauce.

Savory Potatoes.—Arrange nine medium-sized potatoes in a shallow baking dish, add one-fourth cupful of water, six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two onions finely minced, one tablespoonful of powdered sage, one teaspoonful of salt and pepper to season. Bake one hour or until the potatoes are soft.

Slices of lemon dusted with paprika or finely minced parsley make very pretty garnishment for fish.

Are You Economical?

Here are a few questions which it is wise to ask one's self quite frequently: Are you careful of the large expenditures but careless of the little things?

We have been often called the most wasteful nation in the world. Anyone, if he has plenty, may be wasteful, but true thrift is found as often among those of wealth as those who have little. If the one who is wealthy has earned it himself, that very fact shows that he has been thrifty and saving.

Do the members of the family take more food upon the plate than they can eat? It used to be considered good form to leave food on the plate; that has passed into disuse; now it is a compliment to one's hostess to leave a clean plate.

Look into the cup after a meal and see who leaves sugar undissolved and wasted. Such waste is both useless and wrong. Stirring the sugar to dissolve it takes but a minute and if less is needed less should be served.

Are the vegetables prepared in a wasteful manner; is food carelessly prepared, burned and unpalatable, so that it is uneaten and then thrown out?

Are you spending more than a third of your income for food for your family?

Are you buying foods out of season, thus spoiling the appetite for them when they are in the seasonable market? If so, this is waste of labor, fuel, transportation, as well as money.

Are you buying perishable foods in such quantities that they must spoil before they are used?

Are you using the fish of your own community rather than those which must be shipped in at greater expense?

Do you throw away the vegetable waters or combine them in soups or gravies to serve with the foods?

Do you use the cheaper cuts of meat which are more nourishing, or the choicer cuts which cost twice as much?

Do you plan your meals several days ahead, so that leftovers may be utilized?

Do you realize that the mother in the home is the most important member; that her strength should be conserved and her comfort looked after? Has she time and strength-saving conveniences so that her family may have the maximum comfort with the minimum labor, so that she may have rest and leisure to keep her health, happiness and good looks?

Let us look at the little leaks, the irritating little things which wear away nerves and cause friction and discord. These are the things which cause many bankrupt homes.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson, Secretary, Illinois Press Association

A group of bills, introduced by Senator Earl B. Searcy and supported by the American Legion, were passed by the senate. Senate Bill No. 368 provides that the name of the Illinois Soldiers' Orphans' home at Normal be changed to Illinois Home for Soldiers' and Sailors' Children and provides that the superintendent of the home may expend a sum not to exceed $1,000 per year to help in the support of the three children from such home granted scholarships to the state universities for the two years the children are attending. Senate Bill No. 370 permits the children of officers and enlisted men of the United States army living on military reservations to attend the public schools of this state without paying tuition. A companion bill provides that the state department of public welfare may expend the remaining portion of the soldiers' bonus fund for the entertainment of children of veterans in the institution at Normal.

Twenty-five representatives of the chambers of commerce in each of the five cities in which state normal schools are located called upon Governor Small to urge increased appropriations for the schools. Pending bills call for appropriations to be distributed by the department of education as follows: Illinois State Normal university, Normal, $1,093,906; Eastern Illinois State Teachers' college, Charleston, $523,286; Western Illinois State Teachers' college, Macomb, $959,389; Northern Illinois State Teachers' college, DeKalb, $503,434; Southern Illinois State Teachers' college, Carbondale, $796,218; Normal school revolving fund, $900,000.

The joint flood and storm relief committee, which was named at the suggestion of Governor Small in a special message, has agreed on a $1,000,000 relief measure; the bill provides further that the appropriation shall be distributed by a commission of seven to be named by Governor Small. This commission, to be known as the Illinois Flood and Cyclone Relief commission, will make thorough examination of conditions in affected districts, and give aid in all necessary cases. Senator Ben L. Smith, Pekin, introduced the bill in the senate. The measure carries an emergency clause and will be rushed through both branches.

State Superintendent of Paroles Hinton G. Clabaugh has tendered his resignation to Governor Small, following amendments offered in the senate to Senate Bill No. 374, introduced by Senator John Daley, Peoria. This bill, which embodied a part of the program favored by Superintendent Clabaugh, provides for abolishing the office of supervisor of paroles and creates in its place the parole board to consist of a chairman and twelve members.

The house committee on industrial affairs has reported out favorably Senator Starr's eight hour day bill for women. It has passed the senate. Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill, who introduced the eight hour bill which was killed some time ago in the house, will lead the fight for the Starr measure.

The condition of Representative T. J. Sullivan, who has been ill for some days in a Springfield hospital, is reported to show considerable improvement. Blood transfusion was at first thought to be necessary, and a number of members of the house offered to undergo tests for it.

A bill giving Chicago and Cook county the right to erect and maintain a municipal convention hall has received Governor Small's signature. Approval of this bill greatly strengthens Chicago's bid for the national conventions of the major political parties in 1928.

Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer's bill authorizing county boards to appoint a county health superintendent advanced to the order of third reading in the house. It passed the senate some weeks ago.

Representative Thomas Fekete's bills providing for the control of mutual benefit societies doing business in the state by the state department of trade and commerce passed the house.

The arguments in the state's accounting suit against Gov. Len Small have been closed and the case taken under advisement by Master-in-Chancery Charles G. Briggie.

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom recently called upon President Coolidge at the White House.

By a bare constitutional majority the senate passed Senator Rodney B. Swift's bill, providing for sterilization of people in state institutions with criminal tendencies. The measure now goes to the house.

Judge Angus W. Kerr of Springfield, who was assistant to Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom and was recently appointed a member of the state crime commission, died following an operation for relief from appendicitis. Judge Kerr was chief counsel of the United Mine Workers of America.

The resentment voiced by fishermen throughout the state against House Bill No. 727, amending the fish conservation act of 1923, was occasioned by an erroneous report that the bill provided for raising the license fee for hook and line fishing from fifty cents to three dollars.

This bill, which was introduced by Mrs. Mary C. McAdams of Quincy, amends the present law to read, "No pole and line license is required for residents of the state of Illinois." The license fee for non-residents is raised to three dollars.

License fees for fishing by seine or net are increased and are very much higher for nonresidents than for residents. Limitations are placed upon the length and depth of seines that may be employed, and the length and frequency of fencing or hedging that may be employed with hoop or fyke nets.

Mrs. McAdams says: "Statutes now existing were designed to provide a means of livelihood for many very poor fishermen who lived along, or on, the river. But the business became attractive, and it has fallen into the hands of large corporations who employ the most destructive methods that can be devised for catching fish in large quantities. Such devices now extend to the 1,000-yard seine, which is 26 feet deep at the center, with which the owners can sweep the entire river and have taken as much as 80,000 to 100,000 pounds of fish at a single haul. Twenty years ago the Illinois river was noted for the amount of fish shipped therefrom. Today we are not only importing fish but are spending thousands in our efforts to grow fish that these fishermen may destroy them."

In regard to pole and line fishing, Mrs. McAdams says: "We are now collecting $150,000 from our people for the privilege of fishing in a wash tub, and depriving the private citizen of a few hours of his chosen recreation each year, one who would not deplete the supply of fish as long as the world stands."

Colonel Q. R. Miller, director of public works and buildings, has announced that the home of Abraham Lincoln at Eighth and Jackson streets, Springfield, will be open on all holidays from 10 to 12 o'clock in the morning and from 2 to 5 o'clock on Sundays, in order better to accommodate the thousands of persons desiring to visit it. The weekday hours of 10 to 12 and 2 to 5 will be maintained.

The bill providing that the state pay Will county $20,997.50 for the prosecution of the cases against the six convicts under death sentence at Joliet for the murder of Deputy Warden Klein, which was introduced by Representative John M. Jencoe, Joliet, has passed the senate. It now goes to Governor Small.

Representative A. Otis Arnold's gasoline tax bill was amended by the house committee on roads and bridges. As reported to the house the measure provides that 50 per cent of the money collected from the gas tax shall go to the counties to be used for road building or the retirement of road bonds.

A resolution introduced by Representative Charles H. Weber, Chicago, calling for the appointment of a committee of seven to investigate the affairs of the Illinois Anti-Saloon league, was reported out with favorable recommendation by the committee on license and miscellany.

Lieut.-Gov. Fred E. Sterling named the following as a committee from the senate to attend the flood conference at Chicago: Senators William S. Jewell, Lewistown; Simon Lantz, Congerville; Ben L. Smith, Pekin; A. S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, and Randolph Boyd, Galva.

Justice Frederic R. DeYoung of the Illinois Supreme court has been elected an honorary member of Phi Delta Phi, international legal fraternity, by the chapter at the University of Chicago law school.

Senator Barr's bill, giving the state control of roads constructed by the state through cities and villages as parts of the highway system, passed the senate.

Senator William Sneed's old age pension bill arrived at the order of third reading after an effort to send it back to committee failed.

The income tax bill, which passed the senate, has been reported out of the house revenue committee with favorable recommendation.

A bill to repeal the circuit judges' pension act, introduced by Senator Norman Flagg, was defeated in the senate.

C. W. Cushing, Peoria, has succeeded J. E. McClure, Carlinville, as United States marshal for the southern district of Illinois.

The quo warranto bill, prohibiting the filing of proceedings against any constitutional officer, has passed the house. It had previously passed the senate.

Miss Anna May Price, superintendent of the Illinois State Library Extension board, states in her annual report that 24 per cent of the total population of Illinois, or 1,228,869 persons hold cards entitling them to the use of books in public libraries. Cardholders took out an average of 17.1 volumes each during the year.

Cling to Custom of Carrying Off Mates

A curious marriage custom persists in Abchasia, a district of the Caucasus. On the wedding day the bride withdraws to the darkest room of the house. At dusk the bridegroom, supported by a bodyguard of friends, all fully armed, rides up to the house, dismounts, and hammers on the door with a dagger hilt.

The door opens to reveal the bride's male relatives, just as ferociously equipped, and the two parties promptly join in a mock combat.

Eventually the defenders retire, the bridegroom rushes in, seizes his bride, flings her across his shoulder, and, carrying her out, leaps on his horse and gallops off with his capture to the accompaniment of the victorious yells of his supporters.

Shortly after, the defeated relatives of the bride mount their horses and give chase. When the bridegroom's house is reached both sides join in a contest to see who can drink most wine!

Abchasian girls decline to give up the rite, and few would accept any suitor who did not intend to carry them off by force.

Sleet and Hail

Sleet is a drizzling or driving, partly frozen rain, or rain that freezes on the trees and ground. Hail falls usually in connection with thunderstorms. It is frozen rain, falling in pellets or hailstones of varying sizes and shapes.

Pictures to Match Room

Pictures may or may not be hung on the walls, but ones which harmonize in color and theme really belong in the bedroom as well as in any other. The latest tendency in hanging these pictures is to hang them low enough to be seen without the discomfort of looking up. If the room is large enough a desk like the remainder of the suite, usually a spinet desk which is not too heavy, may be added, with excellent effect.—Buffalo Courier and Express.

Dr. John Roach Straton, condemning a book that attacks the clergy, said in New York the other day:

"I wish novelists could be improved by their own writings, the same as preachers often are by their own sermons."

"One business man said to another at luncheon:

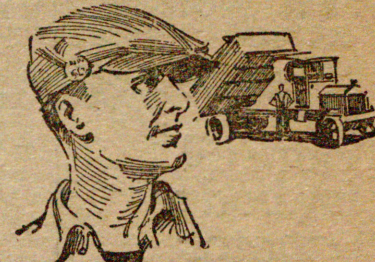

"Well, did you preach your wife that sermon on economy that you were talking about?"

"Sure did," said the second business man.

"Any result?"

"Yep. I've given up smoking."

POULTRY PRICES SOAR IN 1926

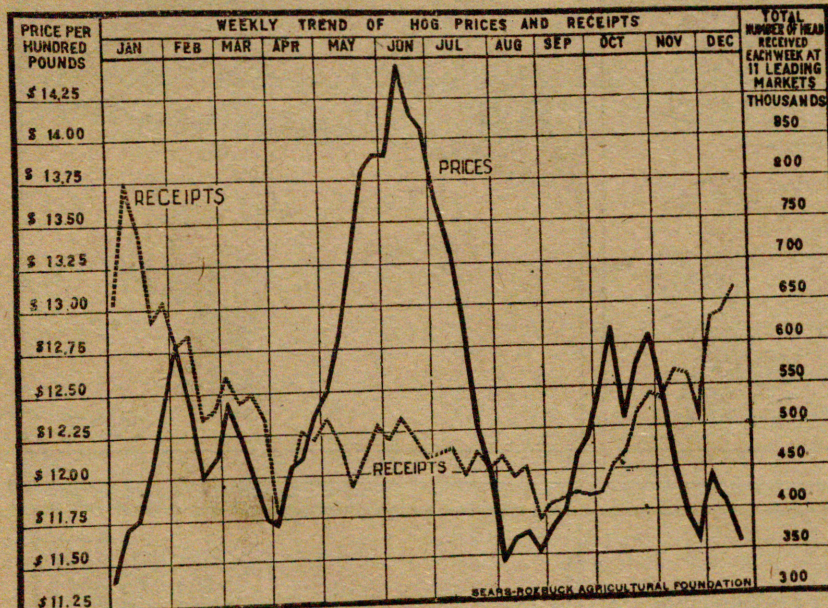

A STRONG consumptive demand advanced the 1926 farm poultry prices 10 per cent above those of 1925, and was the highest price reached since 1920. This boost was recorded despite the heavy marketing of poultry during the year, according to an annual survey of the poultry situation by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

Early in the year storage stocks moved freely, but they mounted rather rapidly in the last few months, when accumulation was under way again. Prices averaged high from January to August, with a top price of 31 cents per pound on five fowls in Chicago, recorded in March, April and May. Lower prices prevailed from August to the end of the year and prices dropped below 20 cents a pound in November, making a price range of 12 cents.

As usual, market receipts were light in the spring months. Chicago, New York, Boston and Philadelphia, the four leading markets, received only 3,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry during some weeks in March and April. In November receipts advanced rapidly to 22,500,000 pounds in the week before Thanksgiving. Then there was a drop, but in December there was a big advance beyond the Thanksgiving figures.

The outlook for 1927 is favorable for a continuation of profitable price levels, according to the Foundation. The per capita consumption of poultry is increasing, which coupled with the normal increase in population indicates that a good demand will prevail.

Hogs Bring $1,200,000,000 in 1926 Markets

HOGS brought to market in 1926 cost the packers $1,200,000,000, which was more than was paid in any year since 1920. The year of 1926 also was the best in fifteen years for the hog producer, the margin of profit between the cost of feed and price paid the hog man in 1926 being the greatest in this period. These are two points which stand out prominently in a survey of the hog situation just completed by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

The survey shows that the dressed weight of the hogs slaughtered under federal inspection during the first nine months of 1926 totaled 5,501,000,000 pounds, as compared to 5,378,273,000 pounds in 1925 and a three year average of 6,169,750,000.

Highest hog values of the year were recorded in June, when a weekly average price of $14.45 was made. The low point of the year came in January, when the weekly average price started at $11.40, a price range of more than $3.00 per cwt. Prices were well maintained during the latter part of the year, largely because receipts were smaller than expected. The appearance of hog cholera in many sections also resulted in considerable premature marketing and a reduction in the total hog crop. In the second week in January of 1926 receipts reached 800,000 head at the eleven leading markets, but declined to 380,000 head in the final week in August.

The spring pig crop of 1926 was a disappointment in size. With cholera losses which cost 1,350,000 head, and no material increase in the fall crop, the present indications point to fair hog prices during 1927, the Foundation's experts believe.
